DODGE CITY WINS.

nta Fe Locomotive and Dodge City Pedestrian Race for an

Last Tuesday at high noon was the time or opening the new Indian lands in Okahoma to white settlement. As the area of public lands has become quite limited, eager throngs are ever ready to rush in whenever Uncle Sam throws a parcel of his dwindling holdings open to the people, and this was no exception to the rule. Notwithstanding the fact that this tract is less desirable than the main body of Oklahoma heretofore open to settlement, and greatly inferior to the smooth and fertile prairies of western Kansas, the throng of boomers far exceeded that of town in County E. He made the race for ing officers of the A., T. & S. F. road and and stock raising in western Kansas.

won by three minutes.

The only station on the Santa Fe road n E county is called Goodman. It is a beautiful site for a city and possesses evolis of the newly opened county above an engine and special coach to make the run into the new territory. The road runs for several miles along the border and outside along its course. Just before reaching the station, the main line track is outside and one could enter from that point without being a "sooner." From the next station north it was only a short distance and, in order to give the trip a dramatic effect, the officials decided to start from there just in time to reach the station at 12 o'clock noon. Knowing the arrangement, the crowd of boomers considered it useless to strive against the rallroad, and the people turned their atention elsewhere. But Dodge City men are not built after the manner of the common herd, and S. Mullendore laid his plans to enter the race against the Santa Fe. He got off the train at Higginsville, Texas, the day before the opening, and, procuring the temporary use of the most accurate time keeper of the place, compared it with the standard time at the railroad office. There being no horses to be had for love nor money, he started on line toward the desired site. The tract on which the station stands is only a short distance from the border of the new territory. A man can run from the line to this quarter section in about two minutes. Therefore when Mr. Mullendore stationed himself just outside the promised land. he knew that if the iron horse chanced to be three minutes late he could win. The chances were ninety-nine to one the special would be exactly on time, in which case our pedestrian would lose the great prize and only have a show for a tract farther into the territory for farming purposes. But the fates were kind to the Dodge City man, and though before the stroke of twelve the iron horse appeared in the distance, it was snorting and puffing against a terriflic south wind, which

Taken by Surprise.

For many years Waldo Tarbox has lived in this community, a just man and upright citizen. Whenever called upon to serve the public, he has made an honest, faithful, capable, conscientious officer. Therefore when his young daughter, Miss Nettie, indicated to a few neighbors that he would be fifty-five years old on Thursday of last week, they decided to surprise him with a party. The news spread and at eight o'clock in the evening a numerous company of old-time friends swarmed into the court house, filling the under sheriff's apartments to overflowing. Mr. Tarbox and his good wife were taken completely by surprise, and as they usually retire early would have been in bed if their unexpected guests had been a few minutes later. The company brought refreshments with them, and after enjoy- happy as you please. ing a couple of hours of pleasant social intercourse, tables were spread and a splendid collation served. Although merely intended as an informal gathering, we noticed an elegant pair of gold rimmed eye glasses, left as a reminder of the occasion by some friend. It was near midnight when the friends departed will be sent to the dead letter office. for their respective homes. They left wishing Mr. Tarbox many more birth-days.

The Democrat has discovered that Otto Mueller's scandals of ancient vintage do not have the desired effect, and has now added John Eigle to its staff of mudslingers. Also an ex-GLOBE-REPUBLI-CAN scribe. The former has contributed a literary gem which is sufficiently unique to be worthy of space in our columns if space would permit, while the latter is about as true as the frate husband scene, which originated only in Otto Mueller's disordered brain and was doubtless founded upon the little incident which caused him to leave his native land so suddenly. The wind-mili affair is like this: Long before water works were thought of for Dodge City we dug a well and erected a wind-mili to furnish water for stock and house use. After the water works came we laid a pipe about four blocks to our dwelling and pasture and used hydrant water and took down the wind-mill—never thought of leaving it there after taking water doubtless founded upon the little inciof leaving it there after taking
